

A ROLLING STONE WHO LOVES TANGO

Posted on Aug. 12, 2010

Rolling Stone member Ron Wood is one of the many fans of the show Tanguera which is on stage in London. The musician has seen the spectacle twice already and he has promised to come back. Apparently, he's been captivated by the rhythm and presence of María Nieves, the protagonist of this musical. At the end of the performance, he greeted the cast and he posed for a photograph with producer Diego Romay.

Tanguera is being shown at the Sadler's Wells Theater in Great Britain's capital. It is a Diego Romay production; tickets are sold out for every performance.

María Nieves -after her success with Tanguera in New York last year- returned to perform in London's West End (where she dazzled audiences twenty years ago with Tango Argentino) as the supreme star of Tanguera.